

Mrs Verity Anderson

I am married and a very proud mum to our son, Finley.

I enjoy reading, walking and visiting England's many wonderful coastlines. Most weekends you'll catch me on the side of a football pitch, cheering enthusiastically.

Education

Seven years ago I achieved a First Class Honours Degree in Primary Education at the University of the West of England and have been teaching at Stanton since qualifying.

Prior to this career change, I was a proud member of the Macmillan Cancer Support team, supporting patients throughout their treatment pathway.

Why I became a teacher

In short, I think children are wonderful. Being part of a child's early education is hugely rewarding and a journey that I feel very privileged to be a part of. Teaching can certainly be challenging and my family have had to adapt to sharing me with my dedication to my role, but when I am asked what I do, I am always proud to say, "I'm a teacher."

My role at Stanton

I particularly love being a part of a child's first few years at school and ensuring that they have the very best start. I currently teach Year 1 and 2.

I am also the English Subject Lead at Stanton and it is my mission to inspire every child to explore a wealth of wonderful children's literature. As I tell the children often, books are simply magical.

Why I love teaching at Stanton

At Stanton it feels like a family, where children are happy individuals who are excited to come to school. They are captured by the exhilarating teaching and inspired by their learning. Every child is valued and nurtured to achieve their full potential and as a team, we share the belief that every child should be encouraged to believe in their capabilities and be whatever they wish to be. We believe that happy children will work hard and play happily.
